Kul tiras druid moonkin form

General Community Discussion Some of the best absolute druid forms (Save moonkin, let's be real) but limited to one of the worst races in absolute search, it's also just weird and takes absurd demands to unlock. It's like, such a mess really. Well, maybe they'll make some scary shapes for other breeds in the future. 8 Likes I kind of wish they unlocked the racial forms in the hair salon with heritage armor achievements. For example, if I unlocked the kul tiran heritage armor, I would have the druid forms available to all druids on my account of the same faction. 11 Likes maybe, but I think it would be more interesting if after unlocking KT you had an extra quest line as a druid to learn more about their ancestors and so on. Ditto for worgen and nelf. If you fill this out, you unlock their forms. Maybe just a color of them to keep them unique at one point. 4 Likes that it would be pretty nice actually, I'd say one just for that for sure. Would be useful for tauren who want the moonkin HD HM too. 1 Like absurd requirements? Doing the quest that explains the story of Kul Tiras is absurd? 6 Love Don't do it, man... Don't go down that rabbit hole. lol 4 Likes Drnth: absurd requirements? Doing the quest that explains the story of Kul Tiras is absurd? If only that were it. You can level and do the 3 zones, but you still need Jaina's story, then after that you still need the stupid alliance war campaign, then on top of that, you need the KT unlock quest line that forces you to play a bunch of dungeons and. On the Alliance on top of that. Rhielle: Don't do it, man... Don't go down that rabbit hole. lol No rabbit holes here, just honest conversation about giving good shapes to a waste of a race. 1 Like Monsserrat: Some of the best absolute Druid forms (Save moonkin, let's be real) but limited to one of the worst absolute races looking isn't this more of an incentive to play a druid Kul Tiran, however? I mean, I know people love their night elf and worgen druids, but if you wild principal or tutor, you start to realize very quickly that basically the whole animation library of your race is actually going to lose. You'll never see them, so at least with Kul Tiran you won't feel like you're missing anything. 4 Loves Monsserrat: the worst looking absolute breeds. But only 1 of the elves can be druids, I do not understand 1 As yes, they must live with be great, extremely lanky, and a boring, united cat I was saddened to hear the terrible news that you have, tragically, false. 2 Likes I love Kul tho, 4 Loves Apricot: I was saddened to learn the terrible news that you are, tragically, wrong. I just said some factual things. Zettalace: I like Kul Tirans tho, welcome to like 3% of the community. I'm aware of what it takes. The full story of Kul Tiras (which includes Jaina's return to good graces), (including the war campaign, which literally involves Kul Tiras as his goal for the alliance.) Maybe you should take pause if doing some quests once is absurd 1 Like 2 Likes Eh, think what you like, I like the look of my character, and coming from a nightborne, does u no favor. 1 As the only thing is that they look funny in most mogs, have to dig deep to find beautiful looking sets. I love them, too. 1 As if I didn't agree with the feeling. I like the contrast that KulTirans brings to the table. Plus, they obviously make for some good pun names... 2 Loves Not only are the KulTirans really cool and unique, but you also have over a dozen Legion forms to choose from if you don't like it. I don't see the problem. 4 Loves the next page -> general community discussion, I absolutely like it. The only thing I wish they could do was make the waist suit reach the feet of the moon to make it look a little scarier. Atleast for me. But I still love him and I look forward to my future druid! Edit: And a little thinner just to have the vrykul skeleton. Can you imagine!? A scary imposing moonkin who moved like a vrykull!? 2 Loves It's terrible, you have a terrible taste and you are not allowed to love it. Jokes. Seriously, I'm glad it appeals to some people though. Personally, I'm incredibly sad that they went with that terrible... thing instead of the Wickerman model. 2 Likes I'd like the wicker guy too, but eh... He must be a flappier. And also use the skeleton of arakkoa. In fact no, be exactly the same as the zandalari moonkin. But both are real arakkoa now. Scratch that, make everyone an arakkoa. Why corgis when everyone could be birbs? Apparently, you need to eat the actual moon to become a druid swing. Round big chicken and now a big nasty round chicken. Pterodactyl diet seems very healthy tho. Honestly, I was disappointed with the kulTiran boomkin form. After seeing the wicker cat, the bear and the travel forms, I was really hoping for something that would follow suit. In fact, I had convinced myself that we were going to get something similar to the constructions you see in Drustvar. But when I saw what we had. It looks like a stuffed scarecrow... and not a nice one. Zandalari got a damned pierodex form (sp?) for their druid balance, and its very well done. But instead of giving kulTirans something as unique as they get the same boom-shaped skeleton, but with branches glued to it. 2 Not sure if I make a druid of the race, but I must say it grew on me, unlike that zandalari... God it's as if someone is forcefully merging a dryosaurus and a pterosaur with the dna of the big bird for all that anthro look, it's not I'll tell you! A form of scarecrow wicker would be epic. The KulTiran Boomkin shape is awesome, really tempted to make one just because of it. 1 As comments Everything you need to know about Kul Tiran druid shapes. Kul Tirans are a particular breed. They are certainly not for everyone. But their aesthetic is the freshest in WoW. Based on many European cultures, it is unique for the game. Great kingdom that mastered the ways of the sea, Civilized/Civilized which are also superstitious and traditional. Doesn't that remind us of Britain, Holland, France and others? In the typical WoW way of exaggerations, of course! The very idea that they are druid seems amazing. Before you see how masterfully well it is given life. Here are the most amazing Kul Tirans druid shapes! 1/7. OURS FORME: MAUVAISE NIGHT IN THE BOIS When a tree stump is not a stump, but a bear. Kul Tiran bear shape is certainly terrifying - spikes and skull. There are more sticks and stone here though, but it's the shape that counts. Look really pagan and a great way for a tank to be great. The exact origin of the shape of the Kul Tiran bear is not so obvious. This could be a combination of representations of Artio, the goddess of the Celtic bear, and another Celtic god Cerunnos (pictured above), which might have been the inspiration for Cenarius too. 2/7. CHAT FORME: BAD NIGHT IN THE WOODS 2 Oh, look, another form of druid cat that doesn't seem like it could let you pat it. Given the aesthetics, what else do you expect? This creature comes directly from nightmares. And that's your new advantage! Surprisingly, the creature closest to the form of druid cat Kul Tiran is based on a dog. Cu Sith, a huge but silent assassin, wandered the Gaelic highlands - could still do! A harbinger of death, this canine shared an exchange with your wild druid. 3/7. MOONKIN: BIRD WELL FED The Kul Tiran druid moonskin shape is perfect for running. They remain huge and plump even as bird-like humans. A rare combination of clumsiness and terror! Most likely, the origin of appearance comes from Celtic paganism. The druids of many cults wore capes with hoods and decorative horns. The horns were a symbol of many things, including the Cornu God, who is now one of the central deities of neo-aganism culture. And the bird's head undoubtedly refers to crows, which were important for ancient cults as birds of war, death and ritual. 4/7. MOONKIN INCARNATION: PARTICULIER PLUMAGE Some people were unpleasantly surprised by the new moonskin shape. They expected a live wicker man or another scarecrow out of Drustvar. But what we finally got was as unique and unusual as it could get. The success of the basic moon shape has been developed in the incarnate using cold green light effects that make the creature more sinister and less of a clumsy oaf - the very appearance boost you need to let your opponents understand that game time is over. 5/7. VOYAGE: THE RITUEL Another deer? Not really! The silhouette may be familiar. The content is special and fresh. Even if the word fresh is not exactly the first thing you would manage to describe the general feeling its appearance gives. This creature may not be alive, but it is certainly not inanimate. The Druid travel form Kul Tiran could be loosely based on the creature from the movie The Ritual (2017). Although it takes place in Scandinavia, the way the beast looks is quite even very pagan than the rest of the Kul Tiran forms. But this one must be the most terrifying of them. 6/7. VOL: BIRD NOT FED Tel could be a crow of a year of plague. So dark, so strange -- so awesome! Imagine scaring the hex of the players while growing herbs! Blizzs love birds and especially owls, but look how much attention the crows get! The druid flight form Kul Tiran is hardly a reference to something exact, it is more about the general aesthetic of Celtic paganism with a little addition of Gothic. Oberon would approve! 7/7. AQUATIC: BAD NIGHT AT SEA Who would expect a zombie-esque walrus here! But this is really the most sinister marine mammal you can find. The cold water monster, no fisherman would be happy to have you in the net! Inku Turso is where Kul Tiran's aquatic form could come from. The Finnish monster is the most northerly aesthetic Kul Tiran has yet. But it still works surprisingly well with other shapes!
